IMPLEMENTATION AGENCY ACTIVITIES

Survey of Radio Nepal audiences

Radio Nepal has conducted its annual listener's survey for fiscal year 2070/071. The National Institute for Development and Research carried out the survey. The survey was an activity under the Peace Promotion through Radio (Phase II) project supported by NPTF. The objective of the survey was to assess the impact of the peace related programming on Radio Nepal and also to generate data for monitoring. The survey covered urban and rural areas in 10 districts.

The survey found that radio was a main source of information for 53.2 percent, which for television was 18.6 percent. It was 3.3 percent for newspapers and 1.4 percent for the Internet. Across geographical regions, more than 80 percent respondents said that they received information from radio.

The survey also found that there were very few listeners among the respondents who listened to Radio Nepal regularly (11.7%). This information was not much different from the survey carried out in 2013 (12%). Roughly 34 percent respondents listened to Radio Nepal sometimes, whereas around 13 percent listened to it at fixed times. The survey found that about 60 percent of the 1000 respondents listened to Radio Nepal cumulatively. Of the 588 respondents who listened to Radio Nepal, a majority (54.6%) said they listened because the station was 'trustable', 21.1 percent listened because it was a government broadcaster, and 10.9 percent listened because of the clarity in signal. The listeners of Radio Nepal also said its news was more credible.

So far Radio Nepal has broadcast 60 of 104 episodes of Shanti Bahas, 61 of 104 episodes of Shantika Lagi Radio, 60 of 104 parts of the peace drama series Khane Mukhlai Junghale Chekdaina, and 52 of 104 programs under the talk show Shanti Sambad.
